

Carey Lanier / designer

Her roots started in South Dakota where she came from a large family of 6 brothers and sisters. Her passion for architecture led her to the University of Minnesota where she was exposed to a world class education that she applies to her design today. She rounded off her education by getting her bachelor's degree in marketing at National University. Carey spends her downtime with her 3 children and family running from basketball games for her boys to hopping over to Arizona to visit her eldest daughter in college. In her free time, she enjoys creating mixed media art for her commissioned clients.

Carey's big personality draws in her clients immediately and makes an overwhelming undertaking a fun and pleasurable experience. She takes a refreshing approach by continually drawing on the current trends, not just in interior design, but pulling inspiration from the fashion world. Her ability to identify function and style in each of her projects is clear in every project she takes on. One of her many strengths is assessing a space and being able to create an aesthetically pleasing floor-plan that utilizes the best use of the room. Be ready for Carey to exuberantly leap into your project and leave you with the home of your dreams.
